

To whom it may concern,

Throughout my experience with College Works Painting I have learned more than I would in any other internship setting. Usual internships are full of paperwork, uncomfortable clothes, and disgruntled people. While at some pointed during the summer I did deal with disgruntled employees and clients, no other internship would have taught me how to effectively handle and resolve such situations.

College Works as a company holds a professional, developing, and fun environment that anybody should be blessed to have an opportunity to be a part of. Nowhere else will you get one-on-one training and help in experiences that no one else will get a chance to partake in. Throughout the training and support come everlasting connections and relationships that will hold useful to one in the future.

I would recommend an internship with College Works Painting to anybody who is willing to put forth the effort needed to develop themselves as a business professional, leader, manager, and human being. There is no better rewarding experience.

Sincerely,

Meredith Hilgeman
